Verfahrensablauf	The following applies to inland waters: • You submit a written application for the use of electrofishing gear in inland waters. In it, you explain the purpose of electrofishing and provide information on the water, the time or period of the fishing, the names of the designated electrofishers and the electrofishing gear intended for use (manufacturer, type of vessel, vessel number). • The Fisheries Service examines the application to determine whether the authorisation of an exemption is technically necessary and whether the formal requirements for granting a licence are met. You may be asked to provide additional information as part of the audit. • If your application is not considered to be eligible for approval, the Fisheries Service will recommend that you withdraw the application so that it does not have to be rejected for you at a cost. The following applies to coastal waters: • They apply in writing for permission to catch fish in coastal waters using electricity. In doing so, you name the purpose and attach the required documents. • The Bremerhaven State Fisheries Office will check your application for completeness and whether the technical requirements for an exemption are met. At the end of the examination, you will receive a notification of approval or rejection. This decision may be subject to a fee. Approval is subject to conditions that you are obliged
