Volltext	Vocational training preparation is part of vocational training. It serves the aim of introducing vocational training in a recognised training occupation by imparting vocational training. For companies that want to provide training, the bodies responsible for training, for example the chambers (Chamber of Industry and Commerce (IHK), Chamber of Crafts (HWK)), are the first point of contact. These decide, for example, on suitability for the training company and supervise vocational training preparation, vocational training and vocational retraining. The implementation of these measures is encouraged by counselling those involved in vocational training. The competent authority must appoint advisers for this purpose. Trainees, retrainees and providers of training preparation measures are obliged, on request, to provide the information necessary for supervision and to submit documents. In addition, visits to the training centres must be permitted. A company is suitable as a training company if it is suitable for vocational training in terms of its type and institution and if the number of trainees is proportionate to the number of skilled workers employed.

Sachverhalt

If a company does not have the opportunity to provide the trainee with all the vocational skills required for his training, it may join forces with one or more other training companies to form a training network. It is also possible to place the training areas of training that cannot be offered in one's own company outside the training centre (e.g. in inter-company training centres).
