Volltext	If you are active as a showman, "flying trader" or owner of a market stall, i.e. if you offer your services or goods at constantly changing locations, you are operating a traveling trade. To do this, you need a traveling trade license. You must carry this with you when carrying out your activity and present it to the local competent authority on request. As an employer, you must hand over a duplicate or a certified copy of the traveling trade card to employees in your company who have direct customer contact without your presence or who work at a different location to you. If, as an EU citizen, you are only temporarily working across borders, you do not need a traveling trade card.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	• Identity card or passport • Extract from the commercial, association or cooperative register • Certificate of good conduct/extract from the central trade register • Trade card • Proof of liability insurance for showmen • Application form The competent authority may request further documents in individual cases.
