Teaser	If you start working with pathogens for the first time, you must first report this to the State Office for Occupational Safety, Consumer Protection and Health (LAVG).
Volltext	The term "pathogens" means reproducible agents (viruses, bacteria, fungi, parasites) or other biologically transmissible agents that can cause infection or a communicable disease in humans. If you, as the responsible person or as a licence holder, intend to take up specific activities with pathogens (without authorisation or subject to authorisation), you must notify the LAVG of this. The obligation to notify exists regardless of whether the activities are previously reported and have already been carried out by another responsible person or licence holder or whether they are new activities that have not yet been reported. There is no obligation to notify employees who work under the supervision of a person who has the necessary permission for activities with pathogens. The LAVG examines the existing rooms, facilities and disposal measures. Activities involving pathogens shall in particular include:

Modul	Sachverhalt
	• experiments with reproducible pathogens, • microbiological tests and methods for the detection of notifiable pathogens, • breeding of pathogens, • routine storage, • release of pathogens or material containing pathogens, • targeted enrichment or multiplication of pathogens.
