Volltext	Firstly, it is the task of social long-term care insurance (SGB XI) to provide assistance to people in need of long-term care who are dependent on solidarity-based support due to the severity of their need for care. However, the benefits provided by social long-term care insurance are budgeted. A person in need who has health-related impairments to their independence or abilities and therefore needs help from others may be entitled to care assistance in accordance with the Twelfth Book of the German Social Code (SGB XII). The need for assistance may be due to physical, cognitive or mental impairments or health-related burdens or requirements that you are unable to compensate for and cope with independently. The Medical Service of the Health Insurance Fund (MDK) usually determines whether and to what extent care is required. The MDK is commissioned by the responsible long-term care insurance fund when an application is made for social long-term care insurance benefits (SGB XI). The MDK uses a points system to determine how independent a person still is. The following applies: the more points the person receives, the higher the care level (care levels 1 to 5) and the greater the need for care and support. The degree of independence or impairment is measured according to the extent to which someone can manage their everyday life independently and the extent to which they require support. The social welfare provider is bound by the MDK's assessment of the level of care. The social welfare provider is responsible for deciding on the content and scope of the benefits.

Sachverhalt

You are also eligible for care assistance if you are not insured under the social long-term care insurance scheme or are not entitled to social long-term care insurance benefits. If you do not have long-term care insurance and therefore do not have an expert opinion from the MDK or a classification in a care degree from the long-term care insurance fund, the social welfare provider must determine the necessary care requirements.

In principle, care at home should be given preference over inpatient care. If possible, home care should be provided by relatives or other close persons (neighborhood help). If this is not an option, the necessary assistance will be provided by professional nursing staff (nursing services and social care centers).

The provision of services is also possible as part of a personal budget.

In the case of home care, you are entitled to basic care and domestic care as a benefit in kind for care provided by outpatient services and social care centers (home care assistance). Alternatively, you can receive a care allowance if you are able to provide basic care and domestic care yourself. A combination of cash and benefits in kind is possible.

The care insurance benefit framework also includes services when the caregiver is unable to attend (home care), day or night care (partial inpatient care) and short-term care (temporary inpatient care).

You are entitled to care in fully inpatient care facilities if home or part-time inpatient care is not possible or cannot be considered due to the special nature of the individual case.

In addition, care aids and technical assistance, subsidies for measures to improve the individual living environment and care courses for relatives and voluntary carers can be granted.

Caring relatives or caring neighbors and friends may receive social security benefits in the form of contributions to the relevant pension insurance provider.

Long-term care insurance benefits are only paid up to certain maximum limits, depending on the type of benefit.

In the case of full inpatient care, the costs of accommodation and meals are not covered, as these must also be borne in the home environment.

If you are unable to cover the remaining uncovered costs, social welfare benefits (SGB XII) are available.

However, social assistance as state aid only applies if your income and assets - and possibly those of your spouse or partner - are not sufficient. Dependent relatives are only called upon if their total annual income is more than EUR 100,000 each (§ 94 Paragraph 1a SGB XII; §16 SGB IV, Common Provisions for Social Insurance).

Erforderliche Unterlagen

long-term care insurance must submit the medical report from the Medical Service of the Health Insurance Fund (MDK) as well as the notification from the long-term care insurance fund regarding the classification into a care degree and the benefits from the long-term care insurance.

In the case of "non-care insured persons", medical reports or other medical documents should be enclosed; the assessment is arranged by the authority responsible for granting care assistance.

Voraussetzungen

- In principle, only those in need of care in care levels 2 to 5 receive care assistance benefits.
- People in need of care in care grade 1 are (only) entitled to care aids and measures to improve the living environment due to the minor nature of their impairments. In addition, a relief amount of currently a maximum of EUR 125.00 per month is granted.

- However, care assistance is only granted if the person's own resources are not sufficient, the person in need of care cannot cover the costs of care themselves from their income and assets and
