incurred, receipts must be submitted to the long-term care insurance fund or the private insurance company with which the person in need of long-term care is insured. The documents submitted and the application for reimbursement of the costs must show

- in connection with which of the above-mentioned benefits (benefits of day or night care, benefits of short-term care, benefits of outpatient care services or / and benefits of offers for support in everyday life recognised under Land law) the person in need of care has incurred personal expenses and
- to what extent the costs incurred for this are to be reimbursed from the relief amount.

As far as day or night care or short-term care is concerned, it is the practice of the long-term care insurance funds that cost shares for accommodation and meals incurred in connection with these services can also be reimbursed from the relief amount.

Please ask your long-term care insurance fund which documents are required and whether there is a special application form.
