Teaser	Employers must pay a compensatory levy if they do not employ enough severely disabled people.
Volltext	Private and public employers with an annual average of at least 20 jobs must currently employ severely disabled people in at least 5 percent of their jobs. As long as the employer does not reach the prescribed number, he/she is obliged to pay a compensatory levy. The compensatory levy is calculated on the basis of an annual average employment rate. It is staggered depending on the fulfillment of the employment obligation. Payment of the equalization levy does not cancel the obligation to employ severely disabled people.

Modul	Sachverhalt
	The funds from the equalization levy are used exclusively to promote the participation of severely disabled people in working life, including accompanying assistance in working life.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	The following must be reported <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the number of jobs (separately for each company and each department) • the number of severely disabled persons and persons with equivalent status employed in the individual companies as well as other eligible persons. If necessary, a list of severely disabled employees must be submitted. • Multiple offsetting (under certain conditions, the employer may offset one severely disabled employee against 2 or 3 compulsory places when assessing the compensatory levy) • the total amount of the equalization levy owed

Hinweise

- Employers who are obliged to pay the equalization levy can also fulfil their payment obligation in whole or in part by placing orders with recognized workshops for the disabled or workshops for the blind. 50 percent of the amount invoiced for the work performed by the workshop (total invoice amount less material costs) can be offset against the compensatory levy to be paid in each case. This takes into account the work performed by the specialist staff, but not the work performed by other non-disabled employees.
- Payment of the compensatory levy does not cancel the obligation to employ severely disabled persons.
