of the stay of the family member already living in Germany.
Before foreign spouses/life partners or underage children can travel to Germany, they require a visa for family reunification, which they can apply for at the German diplomatic mission in their home country (see "National visa; issue and extension" under "Related topics").
The foreigners authority can tell you in each individual case whether there are exceptions to the visa requirement - for example for certain countries of origin.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

The documents required are manifold and may vary considerably. Please consult your competent Aliens Department.

- Documents for the subsequent immigration of family members
- Certificate of registration from the residents' registration office
- Identity card or passport
- Income statements
- Evidence of sufficient living space
- marriage certificates, if applicable

Voraussetzungen

What all cases of family reunification have in common is that the spouse/partner and minor children must enter the country to establish and maintain the family relationship or civil partnership.
Further requirements are

- that the family member (for whom the family reunification is taking place) is in possession of a residence permit,
- sufficient living space is available,
- their livelihood is secured,
- that both spouses are of legal age and
- that the spouse joining the family can communicate in German in a simple manner.

With regard to the living space requirement, there is an exception for reunification with holders of an EU Blue Card, other skilled workers, certain scientists, self-employed persons and some other groups of people. In the case of reunification with holders of an EU Blue Card, proof of livelihood is not required under certain conditions.

Modul
Sachverhalt

Family members other than spouses/partners and underage children, such as grandparents, parents-in-law, siblings, uncles, aunts and grandchildren, may only be allowed to join family members in cases of exceptional hardship. There are high requirements for the existence of a case of exceptional hardship. No benefits are provided for such foreign family members of Germans. Exceptions apply to the parents of holders of an EU Blue Card, other skilled workers, certain scientists, self-employed persons and some other groups of people; in these cases, the parents may also be allowed to join them if their livelihood is secure. This also includes the reunification of parents-in-law, provided the spouse resides or will reside permanently in Germany.

Family reunification is excluded in the following cases, among others:

- to foreigners who are in Germany as asylum seekers and whose asylum procedure has not yet been completed,
- to foreigners who are obliged to leave Germany, including those whose deportation has been temporarily suspended (e.g. due to inability to travel, lack of passport or interrupted or missing transport connections), i.e. who are only staying in Germany on a tolerated basis,
- to foreigners who have only been granted a residence permit for a temporary stay for urgent humanitarian or personal reasons or because significant public interests require their continued temporary presence.

Kosten

- Issuing the residence permit: 100 euros
- Extension for a further stay of up to three months: 96 euros
