Teaser	If you were politically persecuted or became a victim of arbitrariness due to an administrative decision by an authority in the former GDR that was contrary to the rule of law and suffered damage to your health, you can receive social compensation benefits in accordance with SGB XIV.
Volltext	Many citizens of the former German Democratic Republic (GDR) were politically persecuted or arbitrarily discriminated against and harassed by the authorities of the GDR state apparatus or the Soviet occupation zone in very different ways. Sometimes this went so far that those affected suffered damage to their health that they still suffer from today. Such damage to health can be, for example <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • chronic pain due to the consequences of police operations contrary to the rule of law or • long-term psychological damage caused by years of spying and harassment by the Stasi. If this applies to you and there are no grounds for exclusion, you may be entitled to social compensation benefits. You are excluded from these benefits if you yourself have violated the principles of humanity or the rule of law in the past or have seriously abused your position for your own benefit or to the detriment of others. This is the case, for example, if you voluntarily acted as an informer or informer for the Ministry for State Security (MfS) in order to gain advantages for yourself.
