Teaser	You may only remove certain structures if you give prior notification of the intended removal. The removal of a structure must be notified if it is not exempt from the procedure.
Volltext	The notification of removal is not an application. You only need to inform the responsible authorities of the impending removal. Only the complete removal of an installation must be notified. The partial removal of an installation is a change to an installation and may require planning permission. The notification of removal is intended to give the lower building supervisory authority and the local authority sufficient time to check whether any measures need to be ordered before removal. If necessary, a qualified structural engineer must supervise the removal. Consequences of non-notification If you deliberately or negligently fail to report the removal of the installation one month prior to removal, you are committing an administrative offense. You can be fined up to EUR 500,000 for this.
