Teaser	Employees who are subject to special protection against dismissal can only be dismissed with the approval of the competent trade supervisory office.
Volltext	Employees enjoy special statutory protection against dismissal under certain conditions. This arises in particular from Section 17 of the Maternity Protection Act (MuSchG), Section 18 of the Federal Parental Allowance and Parental Leave Act (BEEG), Section 5 of the Caregiver Leave Act (PflegeZG) and Section 2 (3) of the Family Caregiver Leave Act (FPfZG). In the aforementioned areas, dismissal may be declared permissible in special cases by the highest state authority responsible for occupational health and safety or the body designated by it. In Bavaria, the trade supervisory offices at the district governments are responsible for this. This special protection against dismissal protects pregnant women, mothers after childbirth, mothers and fathers on parental leave and women and men on care or family care leave from losing their jobs.
