Teaser	You can have the equivalence of foreign (non-academic) agricultural vocational training with a comparable German occupation (e.g. farmer, animal farmer, gardener, housekeeper) confirmed.
Volltext	In the area of agricultural training professions (non-regulated professions), the recognition certificates - unlike in the area of regulated professions - are not a prerequisite for permission to practice the profession, but primarily a "transparency instrument". A certificate of recognition makes it easier for employers to assess foreign qualifications and thus improves the labor market opportunities of those qualified abroad. The determination of equivalence gives the applicant the same rights and obligations as the holder of the comparable German qualification. The detailed presentation of the existing qualifications and significant differences helps skilled workers to apply for jobs on the labor market or to obtain further qualifications in a targeted manner and then, if necessary, to seek a new procedure to determine equivalence.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Tabular list in German of the training courses completed and the gainful employment pursued • Certified copy of identity document (identity card or passport) • Proof of training qualification acquired abroad, if applicable with training contents (e.g. schedule of classes, syllabus)

Sachverhalt

- Other evidence of qualifications
- Proof of relevant professional experience (e.g. employer's reference, work book)
- Proof that gainful employment is to be pursued in Germany (e.g. application for an entry visa for gainful employment, contacting potential employers, business concept in the case of self-employment).
- You must submit the following documents:

Voraussetzungen

Any person who has obtained a training qualification abroad and intends to work in Germany can apply for an equivalence assessment procedure. Proof of training means that the applicant must provide evidence of vocational training completed abroad. Anyone who has not acquired a foreign vocational qualification cannot submit an application; purely informal professional qualifications, e.g. those acquired solely through work experience, are not sufficient. Semi-skilled workers or unskilled workers who do not have a professional qualification from another country are therefore not eligible to apply.

Kosten

The equivalence procedure in accordance with the Professional Qualifications Assessment Act is subject to a fee. Depending on the effort involved, fees of EUR 100 to 600 may be incurred. Further information can be found under "Further links".

Verfahrensablauf

The equivalence procedure begins with the application to the competent authority, generally in writing and signed by hand. An electronic application is also possible if the e-mail or application is provided with a qualified signature; the prerequisite for a qualified signature is that a certificate from a certification service provider is available in accordance with Section 2 No. 3 of the Signature Act. These providers verify the identity of the user and generate an electronic certificate for this person. It is also possible to submit an application by fax if the original bears the signature of the applicant.

Bearbeitungsdauer

- Standard procedure: Maximum 3 months after receipt of the necessary documents.
- Accelerated

Hinweise	Applicants are recommended to seek advice from the relevant advisory services in advance. This will allow any questions about the recognition procedure to be answered immediately. The recognition procedure only begins once all the necessary documents have been submitted.
Rechtsbehelf	An action may be brought against the decision before the administrative court. An objection procedure in accordance with Art. 15 of the Act on the Implementation of the Administrative Court Code (AGVwGO) does not have to be carried out in advance. In particular, these are not "personal examination decisions" within the meaning of Art. 15 AGVwGO.
