Sachverhalt

A driving license is also not required at the time of taking the exam.

If you have certificates of professional competence in accordance with the professional access regulations for road haulage and passenger transport (GBZugV and PBZugV), the theoretical parts of the examination are simplified. However, you must pass the practical examination in full.

The type of examination differs depending on the prerequisites:

1. standard examination "basic qualification"

You must take the standard examination if you cannot provide proof of a certificate of professional competence in road haulage or passenger transport ("transport manager examination") for the type of transport in question, nor if you have successfully passed an (accelerated) basic qualification examination for the other type of transport.

2. changeover examination "basic qualification"

You can take the "Umsteiger" examination if you have already successfully passed the standard examination for the type of transport that is not the subject of the "Umsteiger" examination. This means that the accelerated basic qualification "changeover" training only deals with the special features of the type of transport. For example, future bus drivers are taught how to behave in relation to passengers, as this was not part of their first basic qualification in freight transport. This also applies to drivers who obtained their driving license for the other mode of transport before the respective cut-off date (acquis).

3. lateral entrant test "initial qualification"

You can take the "lateral entrant" test if you have valid proof of a specialist knowledge test for the type of transport for which the test is to be taken. As not all the knowledge that a driver must have is tested in the
