Teaser	If you would like to work as a childminder, you need a care permit before you start working and from the first child.
Volltext	A person who wishes to care for a child or several children under the age of 14 outside the household of the legal guardian for part of the day and for more than 15 hours a week for more than three months in return for payment requires a permit. This is issued by the local youth welfare office (§ 87a SGB VIII). The care permit is limited to five years and may be subject to additional conditions. The permit authorizes the care of up to five other children present at the same time. In individual cases, the permit may be limited to fewer than five children (e.g. if the premises are too small for five children). The total number of children to be cared for is limited to eight. Large-scale day care is a form of child day care in which several child day carers look after the children who are contractually and personally assigned to them in shared rooms (the large-scale day care center). In principle, no more than three childminders may work permanently in large-scale daycare in Bavaria and may not care for more than ten children present at the

Verfahrensablauf

Before you apply for a permit, you should seek advice from the youth welfare office. They will tell you what specific requirements you need to fulfill and what evidence you need to provide.

You can then submit the application in writing to the responsible youth welfare office or hand it in in person.

The youth welfare office will check your personal suitability and the available premises.

If the requirements are met, the permit will be issued.
