Teaser	The sidewalk crossing, also known as a property access road or curb reduction, is used to enable vehicles to easily access a property from the street. Existing sidewalk crossings can be changed.
Volltext	Sidewalk crossings, also known as property access roads or curb cuts, are used to enable vehicles to easily reach a property from the street. If you are planning a project that requires curb lowering, you will need a curb crossing permit. Existing sidewalk crossings can also be modified. You can request a sidewalk crossing change. Property driveways, whether in construction or alteration, require a different finish or attachment than the sidewalk and must be approved by the proper authority. As a rule, the work in the public street space is commissioned by the city. In exceptional cases, you as the applicant may commission the work yourself from an approved specialist company.
