| Teaser | If you care for your child after birth, you can apply for parental allowance to compensate for your missing income. |
| Volltext | Parental allowance is a benefit for parents of babies and small children. It replaces part of the lost income if you want to be there for your child after the birth and interrupt or reduce your professional work. Parental allowance is also available for parents who had no income at all before the birth. If you want to claim parental allowance, you must apply to the responsible authority. There are three types of parental allowance: Basic Parental Allowance (BEG) Parental Allowance Plus (EGP) Partnership Bonus Months (PBM) Parental Allowance Plus and Partnership Bonus Months provide you with particular support if you share paid work and family work after the birth. As parents, you can decide for yourself who will claim parental allowance and for what period. Even if you are a single parent, you can apply for the various options. Parental allowance is also possible for adopted children and children in foster care. The amount of parental allowance is calculated individually. The calculation is based on the income you had before the birth and the income that you no longer have after the birth. If you had no income at all before the birth or no income is lost after the birth, you will receive a minimum amount. For basic parental allowance, this is at least EUR 300.00 per month. |
