Erforderliche Unterlagen

You must submit an application for benefits for participation in working life to the responsible rehabilitation agency (see procedure) or the integration office. The other documents to be provided e.g medical reports, Cost estimates for disabled-accessible workplace design, Employment contract, payslip depend on the circumstances of the individual case. Application forms are available from the responsible rehabilitation provider (see procedure) or from the integration office. Priority must be given to the services provided by the responsible rehabilitation provider. The Integration Office only has secondary responsibility if the services cannot be provided by other providers.

Voraussetzungen

Requirements for the services are: There is or is a threat (for young people) of a disability. This must not only be temporary, i.e. it must last at least six months. You can no longer carry out your previous job or your initial professional integration is not possible without support. Furthermore, there are special requirements depending on the type of service applied for. For example, some services are only aimed at severely disabled people and disabled people of equal status (§ 151 SGB IX). The requirements for support are checked by specialists from the rehabilitation providers (e.g. Federal Employment Agency, statutory pension insurance) and the integration offices.

Verfahrensablauf

Advice and information on all questions relating to the employment of severely disabled people is primarily provided by the pension insurance, the employment agencies and, if necessary, the integration offices. The cost bearer is the responsible rehabilitation provider as part of the benefits for participation in working life or the integration office as part of the accompanying assistance in working life. In any case, you must submit an application for benefits for participation in working life to the responsible rehabilitation provider or the integration office. Priority must be given to the services provided by the responsible rehabilitation provider. The Integration Office only has secondary responsibility if the services cannot be provided by other providers. According to Section 6 SGB IX, rehabilitation providers for the provision of services for participation in working life can be: the Federal Employment Agency (responsible for the first 15 years of insurance); for young people before initial vocational training the statutory accident insurance providers (e.g. professional associations, public accident insurance providers) if the disability was caused by an accident at work in the company, an accident at school or on the way there, or in the case of an occupational disease the statutory pension insurance providers (e.g. Deutsche Rentenversicherung Bund, formerly: Federal Insurance Institute for Employees, Deutsche Rentenversicherung Nord, formerly: State Insurance Institutions) if a pension payment can be avoided through vocational rehabilitation the provider of old-age security for farmers Providers of war victims' care and the providers of war victims' care within the framework of the law of social compensation for health damage, e.g. war and military service damage, vaccination damage or consequences of violent acts (supply office) the providers of public youth welfare (youth welfare office) the providers of integration assistance for the Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg The rehabilitation provider or the integration office checks whether the requirements are met and what form of support is necessary. The decision will be recorded in a written notice. All rehabilitation providers and integration offices are obliged to provide information, advice and cooperation. The institution
