maintenance for care on the occasion of birth (§ 1615 I German Civil Code). If you, as parents of a child, are not married to each other at the time of the child's birth, only the mother has custody. Written information can be provided regarding the mother's sole custody, the so-called negative certificate. If you wish to have joint custody, both parents must declare this to the responsible authority or a notary and have it certified. You can submit the custody declaration even if your child has not yet been born but has already been conceived. However, this is still possible and necessary after the birth if you do not want to marry each other and do not want to seek a legal settlement. A declaration of care must be publicly certified. You can arrange this with the authority responsible for you or, for a fee, with a notary. After consistent custody declarations have been made, parental custody can only be changed by a decision of the family court.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

Please ask when making an appointment, as this can vary depending on the situation. Personal appearance is necessary. Prenatal certification: ID cards of both parents Proof of pregnancy (medical certificate or corresponding page of the maternity record). Interpreter for language barriers Postnatal certification: ID cards of both parents Birth certificate of the child if the father is already registered Paternity recognition If necessary, interpreter

Voraussetzungen

The parents are not married to each other. There is legal paternity (through effective recognition or judicial determination) The child does not have to be born yet, but it must have been conceived. A court decision regarding parental custody has not yet been made. The parents must appear in person. In principle, the parents must have legal capacity. The declaration of custody by a parent with limited legal capacity requires the consent of their legal representative. Both parents speak sufficient German. If this is not the case: Youth Welfare Office: If you need an interpreter, please indicate the language you require when making the appointment. Notary: If you need an interpreter, you must bring an interpreter with you to the appointment. This person must have a valid identity document and must not be related or related by marriage to the | Verfahrensablauf             | If this has not already been done, the father must first effectively acknowledge paternity. Both parents must appear in person At the appointment you will be informed about the legal consequences of the custody declarations. This will then be read to you and signed by both parents. Both parents receive certified copies of the certificate. The same procedure applies to children who were born abroad, with the difference that the custody register for all of these children is kept centrally in Berlin. | Hinweise                     | Declarations of custody can only be submitted to the youth welfare office (also possible before birth); both the youth welfare office (also before birth) and the registry office accept paternity acknowledgments in connection with the birth certificate (see link - Birth certificates for newborns). In principle, all certifications to be carried out in this context can be carried out at any youth welfare office in Germany. Alternatively, these declarations can also be made to a notary. The same procedure applies to children who were born abroad, with the difference that the custody register for all of these children is kept centrally in Berlin. The  |
