Modul

Sachverhalt

The work as a poll worker is voluntary. In principle, every eligible voter is obliged to take on this voluntary work. It may only be refused for important reasons. In the following cases, for example, there is a right to refuse to act as a poll worker:

- you have reached the age of 65 on election day
- it can be credibly demonstrated that caring for the family makes it particularly difficult to exercise the office
- the office cannot be exercised due to illness, disability, urgent professional or other important reasons.

The existence of an important reason must be proven.

The following may not be appointed

- Candidates for election
- Representatives of the election proposals
- Members of other electoral bodies

Refreshment allowances

Election assistants receive a refreshment allowance for their work. The amount of the refreshment allowance varies depending on the effort and responsibility involved. Depending on the type of election, attending a training event is mandatory for certain activities (e.g. on the counting board). An additional expense allowance is granted for attending a training event.

Verfahrensablauf

Registration as an election assistant can be submitted to the Citizens' and Public Order Office, Statistics and Elections Department, on a voluntary basis. Registration is binding! It can be submitted in writing, in person or online.

The Citizens' and Public Order Office will deploy polling assistants in their own electoral district or close to where they live if possible. However, this is not possible in all cases. Requests regarding the place of deployment should be communicated when registering. For example, you can also specify a preferred constituency for the assignment. The Citizens' and Public Order Office, Statistics and Elections Department, will then try to take this into account.

In principle, every eligible voter is obliged to take on voluntary work.

Bearbeitungsdauer

If you are interested in volunteering as an election worker, please contact the Citizens' and Public Order Office, Statistics and Elections Department, as early as possible. Election workers are generally appointed in writing a few weeks before the election. In exceptional cases, however, it may happen that election workers have to be appointed at short notice - possibly even on election day.

Hinweise

The Citizens' and Public Order Office may collect and process personal data (surname, first name, date of birth, address, telephone numbers, number of appointments made) of eligible voters for the purpose of appointing them as election assistants. The data may also be processed for future elections, provided the data subjects have not objected to the processing of their data. The data subjects must be informed of their right to object.

Special features of the individual elections:

Election of the German Bundestag and the European Parliament:

In the election of the German Bundestag and the European Parliament, there is an electoral board for each electoral district, which carries out its activities on site at the polling station. It is responsible for both the election process (voting from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.) and for determining the election result.

Polling assistants must be present at the respective polling station on election day before the polling stations open in order to make preparations. During the election day, attendance is usually in shifts. After the polling stations close, all poll workers must be present until all votes have been counted.

There are also postal voting boards that carry out their work in the postal voting center. They meet at midday and initially decide on the admission of postal votes. After the polling stations close, they count the votes cast by postal ballot.

Election of the Bremen Parliament and the Bremerhaven City Council

For these elections, so-called ballot box election boards are set up in the polling stations. They are responsible for voting (from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.). After the polling stations close at 6 p.m., they are responsible for the final work, after which they can finish their work when the election documents have been handed over to the responsible persons at the municipal authority.

The counting of votes is then the responsibility of independent postal ballot boards and counting boards. They meet in the premises designated for counting outside the polling station.

The count is expected to take several days.

Electoral assistants who are deployed as postal ballot board members or counting board members will generally also work there on the days following the election until the provisional election results for all polling districts have been determined. In view of the more complex five-vote electoral system, more comprehensive training is required for poll workers - especially in the counting boards.
